Category:Bleach (manga)Femoral head allograft transplantation in arthritic hip joints: treatment of established disease and prevention of disease recurrence after tumor removal in a canine model. Seventy-two diseased arthritic hip joints in 36 canines were treated by femoral head allograft transplantation; 40 joints were transplanted before cement fixation and 32 after cement fixation. In 11 dogs previously treated for osteosarcoma, 69 hip joints were transplanted as a secondary procedure. With the exception of one dog, none of the treated joints had a recurrence of disease, and none of the dogs manifested signs of systemic disease. These results clearly demonstrate the safety of this procedure and suggest that it should be considered in situations where prosthetic joints and or autografts may be suboptimal.# Responsive ## Sfizygezio Responsive, oh la vous y a chance de le faire, avec JavaScript.
