Uplink software, a powerful and easy to use data transfer software, is the solution for transferring data from a computer to a portable/cellular device. Uplink software can easily transfer large amount of data between any portable device and computer (cell phone, smart phone, mp3 player, tablet, etc. including audio, video, and other files) and also back up data from a computer

to a portable device. Supported data transfer modes include FTP (file transfer protocol), SNMP (Simple Network Management Protocol) and ICMP (Internet Control Message Protocol) for transferring both file and data/internet connection. Uplink software is compatible with both 32-bit and 64-bit Windows platform, and can transfer files without Internet connection. The software can also help you restore your data to Windows OS from external media such as USB flash drive, fire wire hard disk, and removable devices. For each portable device and computer, there are multiple data transfer mode choices to choose from and it is also possible to transfer data and files simultaneously. Uplink software allows you to copy/move/rename/delete existing files from/to
