Many vehicles with wheel slip control such as traction control, stability control, Anti-Lock Brakes and Electronic Stability Control are used on precarious urban terrains. A review of the scientific evidence was performed to assess the effectiveness of these technologies. A systematic search and a focused review of the scientific literature was conducted on the topic. Controlled laboratory studies and road-test evaluations in a field setting were included. Additional field studies were considered if high-quality laboratory-based evaluations were not available. The quality of the evidence was assessed using the GRADE (Grading of Recommendations, Assessment, Development and Evaluation) methodology. The literature search revealed 62 papers of varying quality, and 6 additional studies were included. In laboratory experiments, wheel slip control systems had a limited ability to adjust to the varying stability conditions of slippery or diverse terrains. On the real road, the effectiveness of the systems in reducing vehicle crashes and the car's ability to maintain a safe distance from other vehicles were not obvious. No generally accepted performance standards or road safety regulations exist for wheel slip control systems. The ability to effectively apply wheel slip control technologies is limited by the inability of the systems to adapt to the various conditions that occur on the real road. Therefore, it is recommended that tests are conducted under test conditions on all types of road surfaces, to determine the effectiveness of wheel slip control systems under the various road conditions found in practice. Weddings I am a wedding photographer based in Sydney. I love to capture the emotion and emotions that happen in a wedding day. I love to shoot in candid moments, I love to shoot a number of looks for different occasions, I love a couple who brings their own creative and fun attitude to their wedding. I have been shooting weddings since I was 20 years old. I love the story telling element that comes with every wedding, because I love to find that extra little thing that will make your day a memory you will always want to remember. I have a very laid back approach to weddings and I would love to get to know you and your story for your wedding day. The biggest factors that influence your wedding photography is you and your photographer. Your story, your likes and dislikes, your personality, etc.Q: Visual Studio 2015 RC installed I installed Visual Studio 2015
