A novel point mutation of the d2 dopamine receptor gene in a family with familial and sporadic Parkinson's disease. We identified a novel point mutation within the coding region of the d2 dopamine receptor gene in three members (I, II, and III) of a family with familial and sporadic Parkinson's disease. This mutation, C-->A at nucleotide position 889 (AGG-->A GGG) causes the substitution of a serine by an arginine at amino acid position 295. The arginine residue is within the highly conserved third cytoplasmic loop of the receptor protein and should result in a significant structural alteration of the protein, although its physiological significance is not known. This single nucleotide mutation was not found in other families with familial and sporadic Parkinson's disease. Coping and adjustment to change after diagnosis of endometrial carcinoma. The aim of the study was to describe the impact of a cancer diagnosis on women's quality of life and coping strategies. The study was done in January 1994. Subjects were 190 women with endometrial cancer aged 25-75 years. The women had been diagnosed at
