The genetic polymorphisms of the tumor necrosis factor-alpha (TNF-alpha) gene have been associated with type 2 diabetes (T2DM) and its complications. Recently, several meta-analyses have been conducted, but no conclusions have been reached and no consensus on the best genetic model has been drawn. The aim of this study is to determine whether TNF-alpha polymorphisms are associated with T2DM and its complications. Review of the literature was carried out in the PubMed database to identify case-control studies that examined the association of TNF-alpha polymorphisms with T2DM and its complications. A meta-analysis of the published studies was performed to estimate the relative risks. A random-effects model was used in the meta-analysis to combine the risk estimates c6a93da74d
