learn software engineering concepts and practices: ugrasen suman from the best author of software engineering: ugrasen suman, cengage learning..pages thursday, april 14, 2010 what i'm reading: thirteen years in the trenches on the ellen show, cheryl tiegs talks about her new book thirteen years in the trenches: surviving motherhood, depression, and a personal crisis. i met cheryl when i was working on a story about the world tea expo about a year and a half ago. cheryl was one of the main contacts for the expo. she is also the mother of one of my best friends, the uber-talented, bestselling author of all the light we cannot see, anthony doerr. (read my interview with anthony.) i have to tell you that i love the tie-in photo of cheryl wearing an old-fashioned dress from the world tea expo. i love the idea of an old-fashioned dress, which is one of the reasons that i love vintage. i can't think of any reason not to like it. as cheryl says, when she tells a story, she usually uses her own experience. she's written that this book is really her journal. i love that. as a person who has battled depression for the past two years, this book really resonated with me. she also touches on how motherhood changes you. there are four chapters in this book. it's a fairly short book, but i think i'm going to have to own a copy of this one. i'm inspired by cheryl's strength, and i am feeling much better. love cheryl's book? check out her website for more information. and check out her work on the ellen show. i love watching her work.q: generating a 1-second delay with an html5 audio tag i have a need to create a one-second delay in my html5 audio tag.
